BEARDLESS

The beardless sorts are like the single and Japanese peonies, less well known than they deserve. They are free flowering, very decorative in the garden and valuable for cutting. They are not troubled by iris rot but do well in a moist location which would be destruction to bearded sorts. Very rarely are they troubled by iris borer.

BY WAY OF EXPLANATION

WE offer for the season of 1928, the following list of peonies. The peony enthusiast will appreciate not only the length of the list of varieties but the discrimination in its selection. The landscape architect and modest home owner will find his needs in popular priced standard varieties in good selection covering the full range of color and length of blooming season.

In continuation of the custom of the Peterson Nursery of whose stock we had first selection when they discontinued business in 1924, we show in heavy type what they termed Master varieties. The original idea being to indicate a selection of peonies which were outstanding and distinctive regardless of price. Such a collection would cover the full range of form, color, season of blooming and general dependable qualities. Of course, a matter of this nature is a question of personal taste of the individual and there are many additional varieties which peony lovers in general and in fact ourselves would like to see in the list. The value of the list is in conciseness. If lengthened beyond the minimum the purpose of the list is defeated and it confuses and bewilders instead of assisting in the selection of the better and distinctive sorts.

As a further assistance as to desirability in general, we give the rating of the various varieties as based on a symposium of the American Peony Society; 10 being perfection. We also give the general color effect and time of blooming, viz.—Early, Midseason and Late.

We now have under construction at our new gardens, 1245 N. Waukegan Road, (Illinois State Highway, 42A) Lake Forest, Illinois, a group of buildings specially designed for the peony business. The group consists of a residence, exhibition hall, (wherein we shall hold a peony show each year) with root cellar and cold storage room below, general and private offices, tool shed and barn, garage and propagation shed. Construction is of weathered stone with slate roof. To save time in answering frequently asked questions we state that architecture is French Norman and Mr. Ralph W. Varney, Chicago, Illinois is the architect.

Our business has been increasing rapidly and the past two or three years we have been unable to ship all our orders. With the new buildings we shall be able to take care of not only our present orders but an increased volume of business. While we have tried to build an "artistic" building, we have at all times kept in mind economy and efficiency of operation from a commercial view point. We are confident that we have a plant which will reduce our labor, etc. costs considerably. In fact, we are so sure of it that we are passing along a considerable part of the saving to our customers at once, in the form of a substantial reduction in prices in the present price list.

For many years we have had a field of peonies excelled by none. Now we have a plant equalled by none, worthy of our large planting and indicative of the high quality of the stock we grow.

We extend to peony lovers in particular and to the lover of the beautiful in general an invitation to visit us at our new location.

We guarantee our stock to be in all respects first quality, true to name, etc. Prices are based on standard size roots of 3 to 5 strong eyes with a properly balanced root system. Price includes packing and delivery to transportation company at Lake Forest, Illinois. In general, we ship by express but on small orders parcel post is less expensive. If you desire parcel post insured shipment, please add to your remittance 20 cents if for one or two roots and 10 cents per root if for three or more roots.

We do not do a general nursery business.

We are specialist growers of the peony and iris; an undivided allegiance.

Our plantings are of sufficient size and value to require, justify and receive the undivided attention of the owner. We have no other business than that of growing peonies and irises and doing that one thing exceptionally well; an undivided allegiance.

Peonies priced at one dollar each will be sold at $9.00 per dozen as a collection, buyers selection. Reduction applies only to varieties priced at one dollar each and in lots of not less than twelve.

IRISES

We have priced our irises very low this season and have based the prices on volume sales. When 3 of a variety or 6 of a variety, etc. are priced for example at $1.00 it means that the entire number must be of the one variety. We can make no exceptions to the rule. We consider the iris shows to best advantage in mass and a number of a variety are necessary to give a mass effect. If, however, you do not care for as many of one variety, you can readily arrange to divide with a friend, neighbor or garden club member to mutual advantage.
